

REBUILDING A LIFE FOR GOD - Studies In Nehemiah - Part Three

Nehemiah 2:1-20 - "In the month of Nisan, in the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes, when wine was before him, I took up the wine and gave it to the king. Now I had not been sad in his presence. [2] And the king said to me, "Why is your face sad, seeing you are not sick? This is nothing but sadness of the heart." Then I was very much afraid. [3] I said to the king, "Let the king live forever! Why should not my face be sad, when the city, the place of my fathers' graves, lies in ruins, and its gates have been destroyed by fire?" [4] Then the king said to me, "What are you requesting?" So I prayed to the God of heaven. [5] And I said to the king, "If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor in your sight, that you send me to Judah, to the city of my fathers' graves, that I may rebuild it." [6] And the king said to me (the queen sitting beside him), "How long will you be gone, and when will you return?" So it pleased the king to send me when I had given him a time. [7] And I said to the king, "If it pleases the king, let letters be given me to the governors of the province Beyond the River, that they may let me pass through until I come to Judah, [8] and a letter to Asaph, the keeper of the king's forest, that he may give me timber to make beams for the gates of the fortress of the temple, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall occupy." And the king granted me what I asked, for the good hand of my God was upon me. [9] Then I came to the governors of the province Beyond the River and gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent with me officers of the army and horsemen. [10] But when Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah, the Ammonite servant, heard this, it displeased them greatly that someone had come to seek the welfare of the people of Israel. [11] So I went to Jerusalem and was there three days. [12] Then I arose in the night, I and a few men with me. And I told no one what my God had put into my heart to do for Jerusalem. There was no animal with me but the one on which I rode. [13] I went out by night by the Valley Gate to the Dragon Spring and to the Dung Gate, and I inspected the walls of Jerusalem that were broken down and its gates that had been destroyed by fire."

[14] "Then I went on to the Fountain Gate and to the King's Pool, but there was no room for the animal that was under me to pass. [15] Then I went up in the night by the valley and inspected the wall, and I turned back and entered by the Valley Gate, and so returned. [16] And the officials did not know where I had gone or what I was doing, and I had not yet told the Jews, the priests, the nobles, the officials, and the rest who were to do the work. [17] Then I said to them, "You see the trouble we are in, how Jerusalem lies in ruins with its gates burned. Come, let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no longer suffer derision." [18] And I told them of the hand of my God that had been upon me for good, and also of the words that the king had spoken to me. And they said, "Let us rise up and build." So they strengthened their hands for the good work. [19] But when Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite servant and Geshem the Arab heard of it, they jeered at us and despised us and said, "What is this thing that you are doing? Are you rebelling against the king?" [20] Then I replied to them, "The God of heaven will make us prosper, and we his servants will arise and build, but you have no portion or right or claim in Jerusalem."

We're looking here at people who are miraculously brought back out of bondage into freedom. They are finally back into their rightful place - the city of Jerusalem - the place where they belong.

The work of restoration had begun in Jerusalem. Some of the walls of the Temple had been reconstructed by earlier groups of workers. It's possible that sacrifices were once again being offered to Jehovah, the true God. But the fact that the work was begun didn't mean there wasn't still much work to be done. God had brought some of them back. God had brought a measure of deliverance. Now they had to rebuild. It's one thing to be delivered. It's another thing to learn to live in this new dimension of life and freedom.

Last week we studied two foundational points. First, the importance of knowing the proper time for action. And second, remembering the centrality of praying without ceasing. Now on to point number three:

3) THE POWER OF PRAYER MUST BE BACKED UP BY SOUND CHARACTER AND DILIGENCE

Nehemiah 2:5 - "...And I said to the king, "If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor in your sight, that you send me to Judah, to the city of my fathers' graves, that I may rebuild it."

Prayer and life are tied together. You can't pray well and live poorly. Prayer isn't something you add on to the rest of who you are. It flows out of the way you walk before the Lord on a daily basis.

Nehemiah didn't just pray for Artaxerxes. He did a good job for him every day of his life! And that's what enabled the Holy Spirit to use Nehemiah so powerfully in this great time of deliverance and reconstruction in his nation's history. It was the quality of Nehemiah's work for the king that made the king concerned about Nehemiah's health. Nehemiah's diligence at a simple, perhaps boring daily assignment opened the door for his life-changing conversation with the king.

Even in this point, there is great application to our lives today. You pray for your unsaved boss. That's good. But it's not enough. Do you do a good job at the office? Do you show up for work on time? Are you content with your pay, like the Bible says?

You pray for your teenager. Are you a good example in what you watch on TV? Do you sacrifice material things so you can spend time with them? Do you make sure you have your family in church together regularly on Sunday? Do they see you fight with your wife?

You pray for your church. Do you gossip or complain? Are you attending and tithing regularly? Do your children hear you bad mouth the brethren?

All of these are just examples. But the point is, the power of prayer is greatly magnified when it's linked with the power of godliness. Prayer is powerful when my actions and my prayers don't cancel each other out by destroying a confident faith in God's promise.

You see this taught throughout the Scriptures. The Bible links the power of faith with a good conscience before God: 1 Timothy 1:5 - "The aim of our charge is love that issues from a pure heart and a good conscience and a sincere faith."

This combination is a powerful force for God in this fallen world. It will open doors that prayer alone never will. Perhaps the strongest statement of this principle is found in 1 John 3:21-22 - “Beloved, if our heart does not condemn us, we have confidence before God; [22] and whatever we ask we receive from him, because we keep his commandments and do what pleases him.”

Please don't misunderstand the basic truth of this point. I'm not teaching that we earn God's answer to prayer by our good lives. Our best deeds can never earn credit with our Creator. What I am saying is God looks with pleasure on the faith of the one coming in prayer. And a life lived in known contradiction to the will of God only allows a shabby, half-hearted, condemnation-filled approach to the throne of grace. And our loving heavenly Father pleads with us not to neuter our confidence in divine grace.

4) WHEN THE OPPORTUNITY OPENS, NEHEMIAH GIVES PROPER ATTENTION TO DETAILS

Nehemiah 2:6-8 - “And the king said to me (the queen sitting beside him), “How long will you be gone, and when will you return?” So it pleased the king to send me when I had given him a time. [7] And I said to the king, “If it pleases the king, let letters be given me to the governors of the province Beyond the River, that they may let me pass through until I come to Judah, [8] and a letter to Asaph, the keeper of the king's forest, that he may give me timber to make beams for the gates of the fortress of the temple, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall occupy.” And the king granted me what I asked, for the good hand of my God was upon me.”

Notice that faith in God didn't exclude Nehemiah's need to think through the entire situation for himself. God does, at times, call someone just to act in sheer obedience without giving any thought to the consequences - “Just follow me!” Abraham would be a pretty good example of this kind of situation.

But while there are certain situations where God works that way, it's not His normal course of action. Nehemiah doesn't just say, “Praise God! I'm going to put the walls up! Let's Go!” No. If the walls are going to be rebuilt, here's what it is going to take:

- a) Nehemiah gets letters of permission from the King. Do you know what that means? Nehemiah is already anticipating opposition to everything he's about to do! He knows many people will question and oppose him once he arrives in Jerusalem. He will need the king's endorsement in writing.

Yes, he knows it's God's will. Yes, he trusts in the Lord to be with him. But he's not stupid. He knows there are enemies. He knows that all the opposition isn't likely to disappear over night.

Do you know how many Christians start out in any number of fine Christian ventures and end up surprised by the opposition they face from those around them? Or, if they encounter trial and difficulty in their ministry or undertaking, they assume what they're doing must somehow not be God's will after all.

- b) He's calculated all the materials he's going to need, not only to start the job, but to finish it. To do any work, you need supplies. Work wears you down. Construction takes resources.

“Praise God, let’s get building the walls!” Fine, Nehemiah, how are you going to build the walls? How long will it take to finish? How much material will you need to get the whole job done?

There’s a cost to accomplishing anything for God. You can’t run very far just on emotion. Excitement fades over time. Jesus taught very pointedly about the importance of thinking things through to the completion even as you begin anything as a disciple:

Luke 14:27-30 - “Whoever does not bear his own cross and come after me cannot be my disciple. [28] For which of you, desiring to build a tower, does not first sit down and count the cost, whether he has enough to complete it? [29] Otherwise, when he has laid a foundation and is not able to finish, all who see it begin to mock him, [30] saying, ‘This man began to build and was not able to finish.’”

We’re talking about rebuilding different areas of our own lives. Here’s one reason lives remain in rubble. It’s not because people couldn’t, with God’s help, put them back together. And it’s not because people don’t have a general desire for things to be better than they are right now.

Generally, lives remain in rubble longer than God would like because people fail to give the attention to important details in the reconstruction process of their lives. After they've repented and after they've prayed, they don't see the importance of the little steps of reformation that would open their lives up to the strong resources of God's helping, renewing grace!

Remember, major breakdowns come from small details overlooked for too long!

5) GOOD WORK PUBLICLY REQUIRES GOD WORK PRIVATELY

Nehemiah 2:12-16 - “Then I arose in the night, I and a few men with me. And I told no one what my God had put into my heart to do for Jerusalem. There was no animal with me but the one on which I rode. [13] I went out by night by the Valley Gate to the Dragon Spring and to the Dung Gate, and I inspected the walls of Jerusalem that were broken down and its gates that had been destroyed by fire. [14] Then I went on to the Fountain Gate and to the King's Pool, but there was no room for the animal that was under me to pass. [15] Then I went up in the night by the valley and inspected the wall, and I turned back and entered by the Valley Gate, and so returned. [16] And the officials did not know where I had gone or what I was doing, and I had not yet told the Jews, the priests, the nobles, the officials, and the rest who were to do the work.”

As far as we know, Nehemiah had never actually seen the devastation of the broken down wall for himself before this moment. He won't allow anyone else to be his eyes for him. He wants an accurate picture of just how bad the situation is.

He's eliminating surprises that may lie up the road. Where are the areas that are worse than the others? Where will the special craftsmen have to be deployed? Nehemiah doesn't want anything to hinder the work once it's begun.

Jesus talked about this step of preparation: You don't go to battle until you've figured out the size of the enemies' army. You don't start construction until you've calculated the amount of goods needed to complete the entire project. Nehemiah had heard all about the sorry state of the cities' walls. But that's not the same as seeing the rubble for himself.

I wonder how many people never get things back together in their lives because, unlike Nehemiah, they never take the three days time, alone in the dark, to get so desperately disgusted with their present state before the Lord they want wholeness more than anything else.

How hard it is for us to actually come to the place where we thoughtfully and mournfully and repentantly say the words: "I'm a liar" - "I'm an adulterer" - "I'm an idolater" - "I'm a complainer" - "I'm a hypocrite" - "I'm hopelessly backslidden" - "I desperately need Jesus!"

In this study the assignment we need to have the Holy Spirit press into our souls is the need for thoroughness in the rebuilding of our lives. Whatever is broken didn't get that way overnight. And, even though forgiveness is instantaneous, reconstruction is not. Don't confuse the initial thrill of forgiveness with the ongoing assignment of discipleship. That's the only way to keep your life free and clean in Jesus.
